Colorado: Land of mountain peaks and valleys

While it is true Colorado is physically a land of mountain peaks and valleys, the past month has shown us it can also be full of spiritual and emotional peaks and valleys as well.

We learned our dear friends Kim and Everett Ledbetter are moving from Colorado to Topeka, Kansas to build a church upon a foundation that has been being built over the past several months. Over the past several years Kim and Everett have been invaluable to us in the ministry here. We have laughed and cried together many times over the joys and frustrations of planting a church in Colorado. We will truly miss their love and friendship but know God has great things in store for them in Kansas. On a brighter note, they celebrated their wedding anniversary this past month with a vow renewal service and I had the privilege of officiating the ceremony. It was a beautiful ceremony and all of their children and church members were in attendance.

We also recently learned Cross church of Loveland (Formerly Loveland Baptist) has voted to close their doors. Pastor Kurt Parnell and his wife Charolette have also become very good friends of ours over the last few years and have provided great advice and insight to us concerning ministry. I know this was a very difficult decision for them and the church.

Despite going through the “valley” of church closings and dear friends departing, we have made a conscious choice to try and focus on the mountain peaks set before us! One such peak was the revelation that James and Kenya Taylor and family have moved to Longmont, Colorado which is the town adjacent to Mead to plant a church. We are looking forward to building a great friendship with the Taylors and helping them out in any way we can.

As church planters, sometimes we feel as if we are all alone on an island, but a dear friend once reminded me that an island is nothing more than a mountain where the peak is the only thing sticking out of the water.

Ministry Updates

Praises for the Lord’s blessings:

A family very dear to us has welcomed their daughter back home after several months in therapy! Their daughter and Harlyn are good friends. Please pray we as a family can continue to love and support them. We have had many conversations and I have told them it is vital that her AND the family get plugged in spiritually. They have said they know that and have vowed to do everything they could to provide a better environment for her recovery.

Dalton’s friend Zalix has officially move in with us until his mother is released from jail. He turned 18 last week and technically is old enough to live on his own but we have discussed his situation and we all agree he needs the love and structure of a family life. Even though he is now 18, he still has another year of school left, and does not know when his mom will be released. His mom is scheduled for a court appearance on July29, so please pray specifically for her on that day.

It looks like the meeting place we have been waiting on for over 2 ½ is in the final stages of completion! There have been numerous complications and delays but it looks like work is getting done daily on the building now! No date has been set but we are cautiously optimistic!
